PRINCE'S DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF ROSES.

COMPRISING THE MOST

EXTENSIVE COLLECTION IN AMERICA,

CULTIVATED FOR SALE AT THE GREAT ORIGINAL ESTABLISHMENT, PRINCE'S LINNÆAN GARDEN & NURSERIES, FLUSHING, NEAR NEW-YORK.

WM. R. PRINCE & Co., Proprietors.

All orders must be sent to us direct per mail, (post paid,) or left with our Agents, CLARK & AUSTIN, 205 Broadway, New-York.

36th EDITION.

CAUTION.—No other person in this vicinity is authorized to use the name of this establishment, or to receive orders therefor, and no person in New-York is authorized to receive orders for us, except at our city office above named. We particularly caution the public against a spurious Catalogue, in which our title and name are used without any authority, by an Attorney at Law named Winter, or Winter & Co., and we refer to our exposure already published in regard to the character of that concern.

REMARKS.

APPLICATIONS for Boses can be made by simply designating the Catalogue number of each, (without the name,) and mentioning the edition from which the selection is made. In a collection so very extensive, it, sometimes happens that the demand for particular varieties exhausts the supply of a few kinds for the moment, and it is well, therefore, that a few additional varieties be named in the order, to be sent in lieu of any such deficiency. Where purchasers desire a certain number of each class, and are not themselves sufficiently conversant, they can leave the selection of the varieties to us, and we will execute the trust faithfully. The general collection is cultivated in the open ground, but we at all times keep a few thousand plants in pots, composed of a selection from Classes I. to X. The latter are less strong and vigorous than the former, but are well suited for conveyance when the others cannot be removed.

Orders (post paid) must in all cases be sent direct to us, or through an Agent expressly authorized by our written authority, and every invoice will be accompanied by our printed heading and signature. We caution the public against spurious Trees and Plants, said by the vendors to emanate from us.

The best seasons for transplanting are March, April, September, October and November; the autumn is preferable for transportation to the Southern and Western States. In order to insure attention, a remittance must accompany the order, or some other satisfactory arrangement be made for the payment, as at the period of pressing business there is no time for lengthy correspondence. Good drafts at 30 to 90 days, or a satisfactory reference will suffice.

Deceptive Publications.

It has become the practice of some persons in this vicinity, and in three or four towns in this and other States, to publish extensive catalogues without possessing one article in ten or twenty they enumerate, which renders it impossible for distant persons to arrive at correct conclusions. This deception has latterly been carried to such an extent, that there are now in circulation catalogues and handbills professing to emanate from Nurseries in this and some other towns, which actually have never had an existence. We are determined, if this deceptive practice is persisted in, to publish the names and circumstances. These remarks apply not only to Fruit and Ornamental Trees generally, but particularly to Roses. Whatever catalogues or statements may appear announcing very extensive collections of Roses as existing in this vicinity, comparable in extent to ours, are in fact the merest fables, which any one can controvert by an inspection of the different establishments. Our Rose garden comprises about five acres, on which we have expended many thousands of dollars. Very many varieties have cost $2 to $6 each plant, and at the recent Horticultural celebrations, we exhibited the flowers of above 400 of the most rare and select named varieties at once. There is not, in fact, a collection in America comparable to ours in extent, or in the admirable selection of estimable varieties; and having culled the choicest from all the most celebrated Nurseries of Europe, regardless of expense, we offer our present collection as an assemblage of all that is most beautiful and interesting throughout Europe and America, combining a tout en semble unequalled by any other.

PRINCE'S MANUAL OF ROSES .- Price 75 cents.

This work has just been issued from the press. It comprises the most complete history of "The Rose," including every class of this interesting family that has ever appeared in this country or in Europe. Every variety that is comprised in any English, French or American work on the same subject, is fully described in this, together with an immense number of new and splendid varieties that have not been noticed in any previous publication. The most ample information is also given as to the culture and propagation of all classes of "The Rose." Published by the author, William R. Prince, and by Clark & Austin, Saxton & Co., Wiley & Putnam, and Stanford & Swords, Booksellers, New-York. The prices of all Roses rated herein at 75 cents or over, are reduced 25 per cent—with the exception of Moss, and Tree or Standard Roses. The Moss Roses priced at $175 and over, are reduced 25 per cent, and all orders will be supplied as low and in general much lower than obtainable elsewhere.

CATALOGUE OF ROSES

IN THE NURSERIES OF

WILLIAM R. PRINCE & CO.

ROSES.

OF all the hardy shrubs that bedeck the Garden, none commands such universal admiration as the Rose, and there is none to which so much attention has been devoted in the production of new seminal va-rieties. Most appropriately, therefore, has this splendid appendage of the floral domain received the appellation of the "Queen of Flowers." To such an extent has the course of propagation referred to been car-ried, that above two thousand varieties are now enumerated in the European Catalogues. The most astonishing circumstance, however, is the total change in the public taste which has arisen since the production of hundreds of magnificent varieties of the Chinese Ever-Bloom-ing, Tea-Scented, Noisette, and Bourbon, and other perpetual classes, all possessing the invaluable property of perpetual flowering, and there-by affording a long successive display of their floral beauties from the opening of spring until the autumnal suspension of vegetation. The result of this remarkable change in public opinion, has been the almost total abandonment of the Summer or June flowering Roses, usually denominated "Hardy Garden Roses," as they bloom but once, and then only for a very short period. Based as the taste of amateurs is in this case on the strongest reasons for their preference, its course must be progressive, and the period is not far distant when but few of the shortlived June varieties will be continued in gardens where the monthly varieties are obtainable. During a long course of culture, our object has been to select the most estimable varieties from the mass which have been presented to our observation, and in the formation of the present Catalogue, the whole have undergone a complete supervision and critical investigation ; and the varieties now enumerated comprise a Select List, embracing only the most beautiful, and those most estimable for their form, size, fragrance, singularity, or delicacy. This assemblage, so extensive and so admirable, has been made at great expense, and many of the varieties have cost us from $3 to $6 for each original plant imported. Those which we have rejected, and discontinued the propagation of, are enumerated under a distinct head, and without descriptions. This Select Collection occupies four acres of ground, independent of an immense number in pots. During the period of their bloom they present an accumulation of varied beauties scarcely to be rivalled, and those who may desire it can make their selections during the flowering season. The different classes of Roses also present a great diversity in their style of growth, foliage, and in the form and size of their flowers. Some varieties are tall and erect, others procumbent or climbing, others have long flexible shoots adapted to training, and some are of a very dwarf habit. All the varieties will endure our winters, with the few exceptions which are noted in their place, and they are all double except the few which are designated as single.

The greater part of the Roses are on their own bottoms, but an assortment of about 400 varieties are also inoculated on strong stocks 3 to 4 feet from the ground, and thus form beautiful Rose Trees. These 400 varieties can therefore be furnished of either of the descriptions named. The prices, it will be perceived, are lower than they have ever before been offered to the public, and from these prices the following discounts are also made. Where a dozen plants are ordered, 15 per cent.; where 25 plants are ordered, 20 per cent.; where 50 to 100 plants, each different, are ordered, 25 per cent. ; and to such Nurseries as purchase an assortment of a hundred or more to re-vend, consisting of two or more of a kind, 33 per cent.; and where a still larger quantity is desired, the terms will be arranged on the most liberal basis, it being our determination that our correspondents shall find a great advantage in prices in their dealings with us, as well as in other respects. We therefore particularly urge those who wish large supplies to communicate fully with us on the subject, as we will at all times furnish them lower than equally fine plants can be obtained elsewhere, to say nothing of the great number of estimable varieties we offer, which are no where else obtainable. In gen-eral, the plants we vend are much larger and stronger than are usually sold, and more may be saved in this respect than in the price. Mixed sold, and more may be saved in this respect the dozen; $5 50 for 25; Roses, without names, will be supplied at $3 per dozen; $5 50 for 25; $10 for 50; or $18 per 100. The culture of Roses is of the simplest description, and the requisite information will be found under the proper head, and particularly in the Manual of Roses just published.

Particular care has been exercised in the arrangement, and all the varieties will be found under their appropriate heads. In some Catalogues gross blunders are made in this respect ; and, for instance, the Solfatare and Similor are called Tea Roses by some, and in other cases, names are inserted as distinct, which are only synonymous, and many are also enumerated which are very inferior. These we do not cultivate, as there is an ample supply of estimable varieties, without wasting time on the worthless. In those classes of Roses which are not generally fragrant, the letter F is attached to such as are so. The Damask, Provence, French Roses, Moss, Hybrid Provence, Damask perpetual, Sweet Briars, Black, and Tea Roses, being all fragrant, need no such distinction, but an F has been added to some that are extraordinarily so. The letter P is attached to most of the varieties which have long flexible shoots adapted for rose pillars, arbors, or to train against the sides of buildings, The following abbreviations are used in regard to form ; glob. glob-&c. ular, or globose, the outer petals encircling the flower till fully blown; ex. expanded, the flowers rather flat, petals open; cup. cupped, the outer row of petals erect, rather incurved, enclosing the smaller petals; com. com-pact, petals stiff, close, and upright, resembling a double Ranunculus. The letter S has been annexed to a few Show roses, flowers full size, very double, perfect form, suitable for premium exhibitions.

A new distinct Catalogue of Roses is published annually, containing all the additional new varieties.

CLASS I.-CHINESE EVER-BLOOMING, DAILY, OR BENGAL ROSES. Rosa indica.

This magnificent class of Roses comprises so many desirable qualities, that it is ranked by amateurs among the first in requisition. When cultivated in the open ground, as is now very generally practised, the varieties are particularly interesting, on account of their filling up the entire season with a continued profusion of bloom. They commence expanding their flowers in April, which present a constant succession of the most lovely and varied hues that can regale the fancy; and these are continued until their development is arrested by frost. All the varieties enumerated have cupped flowers, except the few that are noted as globular, compact, or expanded. Where no remark is made as to the size of the flower, it is of the ordinary or medium size. In the autumnal months this and the seven succeeding classes present an accumulation of bloom, which is the more grateful, as nature then seems the most to require their cheering influence. In a mild climate they continue flowering throughout the year. If potted and housed they will bloom during the winter months, and form a most brilliant appendage to the parlor or greenhouse: The new varieties obtained during the last few years are more hardy than the older ones. Many of them are perfectly so, and the most tender will withstand our winters with the simplest attention. They can be bound in straw, and the earth raised around the base; or a barrel or box can be placed over them; or they can be cut off within a few inches of the ground, and then be covered with ten or twelve inches of common mould, sand, tan-bark, or leaves.

CLASS 11.-TEA SCENTED CHINA ROSES. Rosa indica, var. odorata.

The varieties of this class are particularly esteemed for possessing that peculiarly exquisite odor which is denominated tea-scented. They have the same qualities as the preceding class, in regard to perpetual blooming, and in the various beauties of color, size, and form. The same remarks will also apply as to the hardthood of the new varieties, and to their winter protection. In growth there are some varieties less vigorous than the preceding class, their shoots being more slender and delicate, while on the other hand there are many varieties which evince great vigor. The Bengal varieties are more vivid in their colors, while these excel in the delicacy of their tints, and combine among their varieties those most remarkable for their orange, yellow, and creamy shades. The same remarks are also applicable to the varieties of this class, in regard to the form and size of the flowers, as were made concerning the previous class.

CLASS 111.-BOURBON ROSES. Rosa Bourboniana ...

The varieties of this class of Roses, although of but recent introduction among amateurs, are unrivalled in splendor, and their culture presents a new era in the combination of charms which comprise the Roseate wreath. Their habit is remarkable for its vigor in every respect. The shoots are very strong, the foliage broad and glossy, and the flowers are of large size, peculiarly beautiful and of regular form, and produced in profuse clusters. This charming family of Roses is now so perfect, and the splendid varieties recently added so numerous, that its difficult to select from such a group of enticing beauties. The whole are suitable to cultivate on their growth most rapid and luxuriant. Many of the varieties will throw up shoots three to four feet, crowned with most magnificent erect corymbs of flowers. The varieties marked P. form long flexible shoots, well adapted for training on the pillars or rafters of greenhouses, or on the sides of buildings and on trellices, arbors, &c. The letter F, designates those that are particularly fragrant.

They are perfectly hardy in this latitude, and even at Boston they withstand the winter with a slight protection of leaves or litter. Like the two preceding classes, they will, if housed, bloom freely in winter. All the flowers are cupped, except those noted otherwise.

CLASS IV .- NOISETTE ROSES. Rosa Champneyana.

This class of Roses owes its origin to the late John Champney, of Charleston, S. C., who raised the "Champney Rose" from the White Musk, impregnated by the old Blush China. The most remarkable characteristics of this class are the profusion of flowers produced, and the immense clusters or corymbs in which they are comprised. This applies to nearly all the varieties, many of which combine forty to sixty buds in a single cluster. The flowers vary exceedingly in magnitude, the greater number being of smaller or moderate size, and exceedingly delicate and beautiful, while others are so large that they may be ranked among the most splendid of the whole family of Roses. The large and magnificent yellow varieties recently produced, and enumerated in the following list, form a new era in this very desirable class of the Rose family. They possess the same property of blooming throughout the summer and autumn, as the three preceding classes, and the flowers of almost every variety are of cupped form. Most of the varieties are hardy, and others nearly so, requiring but slight protection. Those varieties marked P, form long flexible shoots, well adapted for training on the columns or rafters of greenhouses, or on the sides of buildings, and on trellises, arbors, &c.

CLASS V .- DAMASK PERPETUAL, OR AUTUMNAL ROSES.

These are hybrids obtained from the old Monthly Damask varieties, blended with the Ever-Blooming varieties, and they usually flower several times in a season, the autumnal blooming of some varieties continuing until arrested by frost. The flowers are beautiful, and in most cases highly fragrant, which, with their estimable property of flowering during autumn, renders them particularly desirable. They are readily distinguished from the Hybrid Perpetuals, by their flowers and fragrance, which have a great affinity to the old Monthly Damask. They require a very rich soil, rather moist, in order to force their growth, and thereby insure successive crops of flowers. They form admirable Tree Roses, when engrafted on strong stocks as standards. The flowers are all of cupped form, except such as are noted otherwise.

CLASS VI .- HYBRID PERPETUAL ROSES.

This class consists of Hybrid Roses, the most of which owe their origin to blending the old Perpetuals with the Chinese and Bourbon varieties. The growth is more robust, and their foliage more beautiful than the Damask Perpetuals, and they present a constant succession of bloom from June till November, and rank as the most beautiful of autumnal Roses, and with a few exceptions are among the most fragrant. The flowers are cupped, except where otherwise noted.

CLASS VII .- HYBRID BOURBON ROSES.

These beautiful Roses are remarkable for their distinct character; their foliage is thick and glossy, sub-evergreen, and perfectly so in a mild climate, and remains on even here until very late in autumn; their petals are also very thick and leathery, and endure sunshine or changeable weather better than most roses. For an avenue of standards, or for a group, they are admirably adapted. In some catalogues they are erroneously confused with the preceding and following classes. All have cupped flowers except those otherwise noted.

CLASS VIII .- HYBRID CHINESE ROSES.

This class of Roses owes its origin to the hybridizing of the French, Provence, and Damask Roses, with the Chinese Ever-blooming, Teascented, Noisette, and Bourbon Roses. The varieties produced from flowers thus blended, comprise the hybrids here enumerated. Their foliage is highly luxuriant, their branches very vigorous, long, and flexible; their flowers are of the richest hue and of the most elegant and diversified forms, and many of them are delightfully fragrant, thus presenting a combination of all that is grand and beautiful in this department of the Rose. They are peculiarly adapted for covering pillars and trellises, their shoots on strong plants frequently growing from 5 to 10 feet in one season. Although they bloom but once, yet that takes place at a much earlier period than the Summer Roses, and is of longer duration. If pruned after flowering, several of the varieties will throw out some autumnal blooms. They are propagated on their own bottoms, and also budded as standards, and are as hardy as the commonest Garden Rose.

The flowers of all the varieties are cupped except where otherwise denoted.

CLASS IX .- FAIRY OR MINIATURE CHINA ROSES. Rosa Lawrenciana.

The varieties of this class are daily flowering, that is they produce a succession offlowers throughout the year in the same manner as Classes No. 1 and 2. They are remarkably dwarf or diminutive in the size of the plants as well as in respect to their foliage and flowers, many of the latter being no larger than a five or ten cent piece, and all of cupped form.

CLIMBING ROSES.

The Classes X., XI. and XII., are Perpetual Climbing Roses, blooming more or less throughout the season, which is also the case with a very few of Class XIII. The other classes comprised under this section extend to No. XIX. inclusive.

CLASS X .- MUSK CLUSTER ROSES. Rosa moschata.

This class possesses a peculiar and delightful perfume. The flowers are produced in clusters, bloom from July to November, and are cupped, except where otherwise noted, and the plants require the same winter treatment as prescribed for the Chinese Ever-Blooming Roses.

CLASS XI.- ROSA MICROPHYLLA.

This class produces very large cupped flowers, of the most splendid description, from June to November. The foliage is remarkably delicate, peculiar, and beautiful, and the flower buds and entire plant are very distinct from every other class. The different varieties are hardy and well suited to train against fences or low buildings, or to form large dense shrubs.

CLASS XXXIV .- TREE, OR STANDARD ROSES.

This fancy class of Roses, although an improvement of modern date, has now become one of the most striking and beautiful appendages of the Flower Garden. It is comprised of the finest varieties, budded on strong stocks three to five feet from the ground, which form handsome heads, and present the appearance of miniature trees. In this manner they bloom more profusely and produce larger flowers; and nothing can be more ornamental than an avenue of these trees, or groups of the different varieties, placed at suitable distances in a parterre. The Hybrid Chinese, the different classes of Perpetuals, the Bourbon, Hybrid Bourbon, Moss, Noisette, Chinese Ever-Blooming, and Tea-Scented, are the classes that are usually selected for this object, and above 400 varieties of these Tree Roses can now be supplied. All the classes enumerated are perfectly hardy except the three last named, and they require to have the heads bound in dry moss or straw, or to have some other casual protection, during the severe winter weather. The different varieties of Perpetuals and Bourbon, all of which bloom throughout the entire summer and autumn, are among the most admirable in point of ornament, and are perfectly hardy. The usual price for this class of Roses is $1 50 to $2 each, but we now offer them for $1 each, and some extra large sized plants at $1 25 to $1 50 each, and as we cultivate only a portion of the most desirable varieties of each class as Tree Roses, the selection of the varieties must necessarily be left to us. Purchasers: can, however, name the classes from which they desire the selections to be made, and even the varieties, if they think proper, and we will conform thereto as far as possible. When the selection is left to us, the purchaser will be sure to receive choice varieties only.

When any of the varieties that are priced at $100 to $150 in the Catalogue for plants of the ordinary character, are desired to be of the Tree or Standard Class, an addition of fitty cents each will be made to the prices designated; but where the Catalogue price exceeds $150, no addition will be made, and it will be perfectly convenient to supply many of the higher priced varieties as Tree Roses. Half Standards can be supplied of a few varieties, which are budded 1% to 2 feet in height.

Standard Climbing Roses .- Price $2 00 each.

The vigorous varieties of Climbing Roses, may be rendered peculiarly ornamental when budded on strong stocks 6 to 5 feet in height, as they then form beautiful pendulous trees, their flexible branches drooping quite to the earth, and at the season of bloom, they present a most unique and imposing appearance. On some of the stocks we have budded two varieties, of dissimilar colors; the price of these is $2 50 each.

CLASS XXXV.-PROMISCUOUS SUMMER OR JUNE ROSES, USUALLY DENOMI-NATED HARDY GARDEN ROSES.

These, with a few exceptions to which an asterisk is attached, are the older varieties of Roses, the asterisk designating the new varieties. Many of this class are exceedingly beautiful, and it is only to be regretted that their period of bloom comprises but a few days.

SMALL SELECTIONS OF ROSES.

To be be made by us, each plant of a distinct variety, with names.

All hardy Trees, Shrubs and Plants, Green-House Plants, Bulbous Flower Roots, Seeds, &c., enumerated in any American Catalogues, can be supplied at least as low, and in most cases lower, than they can be obtained elsewhere in the Union. The orders will be executed with a degree of precision that cannot be surpassed, and in but few cases equalled, as this establishment is the only one that concentrates all the articles offered for sale within itself; and we are, therefore, under no necessity, as is too commonly the case, of purchasing from different persons, (often ignorant and irresponsible,) the requisite supplies, but supply hundreds of other Nurseries throughout Europe and America.

REJECTED AND SUPERSEDED ROSES,

Being inferior and some being synonymes.

Those who desire these kinds, can have them at 13 to 25 cents each during the present season, after which they will be entirely thrown aside.
